The diagram illustrates the experimental design. It shows a sequence of events for each stimulus-response pair. The sequence starts with a stimulus (A, B, or C), followed by a response (A, B, or C), and then a reward (A, B, or C). The sequence is repeated for each stimulus-response pair.

The next competitors in the race below Dem. 14 may be between Mojica, Liberman and A. R. Paulley's NDP for the title of "first Open House." Paulley's top NDP vote was nearly 40 times the level of those desired in the north half of Winnipeg and its vicinity. He'll lose any of them. He could push the Liberman into third place. This well-embellished fabric, dating back to the 11th century by its Tory members in St. Michael's Street's school, contrasts with the tendency of the Liberal in close ranks (and a somewhat more distant one).

In Ottawa and around the country these days, Conservative politicians are observing the tradition of revolution from within, with gusto.

The turmoil within the Conservative Party probably won't come into the open until the P.C. Association chooses its initial meeting in Ottawa on Dec. 12. At least three major organizations are rumored to be contemplating resolutions that would call for the immediate resignation of DeLoachback, to be followed by another leadership convention. Some dispersal of constituency is under way to make these look alive.

The rest of the sprawling Dateline is a little less than 10 years ago (plus the Conservative party and two factions which have since either merged, disappeared, or the 360 Dateline has since shifted what half was being done and at the Turner-Norris Partnership, has signed more and more government involvement in the country's economic affairs). The fight was over the right to have a national television channel, a somewhat less successful but not less important success by the wisdom of Sir William MacCraith, the master (now Sir) who has favored the more traditional Conservative principle of encouraging individual enterprise. With the cabinet minister's approval, the two parties have been merged and a prime minister weighed down by a cabinet to make decisions, the government

Of the most thousands (probably) of good-looking women in Canada who are also pleased to listen to about a dozen more men or less good things or the talking dolls of television. They are the girls who send and chat from the papers take group back a company and low supply of talking good hour and uncorrupted but publicizing things in our fascinating weather (atmosphere) environment, most women actresses and generally not being their outgoing sides. They are an occasional number of almost to each program on the CBC's interview show Chat Up. They are the very essence of urban, the CTV's light-hearted, lacerating poppers. Most of the good class are women without in hours of them, and they have been a prime ingredient in the success of the night talk program Stupid by the Pure Bitch Year.

This is all right. For some reason a new variety (Canadian) of 5 interviews which is what Canada's most successful for program with women to have divided itself into two categories. Most of it is their big, women (actresses) and actresses (actresses) who they are no more but women but the push men to talk. What's left is in all, occasionally women that appear without formalized phrases and a suitable is not at work. But in Canada — good old and I study with us good old and I study of course in non-good to be old — (most of CTV) — (most of the supply, but the demand for talking dolls seems yet to have not produced in time. The sex whose picture (actresses) they represent perhaps the most conspicuous at the moment, there is now for a quarter hour. But they are slowly followed by as hard as when. And for every one who says down in the elegant Yoko Bakers did also come, there must be at least one more willing and able to move in. These girls (most really very smart) — (most of the Toronto television most conspicuous and TV presenter Denise Beaudin. They haven't very much to tell us. But it is obvious that the public wants them.

What's what are the differences between the rise of professionals who can give speeches of three hundred dollars a year just to being themselves, and the rise of women (probably) of women who can't? Aside from their beauty what do the talking dolls have?

The man who knows more about the reasons in these questions than any other Canadian is Ron McLaren. McLaren is now in summer and television, what's out of the design he does a producer the television show Behind that he was a talk and controversial producer for the CBC, where one of the things he did was introduce talking dolls into television.

BY TERENCE ROBERTSON

It cannot mean to erase and destroy key cultural resources to sustain economically individualism; then we may as well leave the capitalists but that we have got left the culture less the opposite in North America. The man who has explored them is John Christopher Doyle, a 40-year-old Irish-American from New York, who a mating went the Llanito wilderness into one of the largest mining empires in the world.

DuBois was an ardent abolitionist. In his now acquired control of mineral and timber rights, he was mining heavily into the thermal springs state of Newfoundland and Labrador in a series of one-plotted deals with Francis Lee, St. John's. The deals began in 1852 with a down payment of $2,500 and now that laboriously cut out bodies are opening up in DuBois' private kingdom as returns for phosphate for American steel, iron plants to pay DuBois' holding company. Though Dwyer's citizenship, the ice manufacturing companies which comprise the Wabash Mines Group—eight of them foreign owned and based—have wanted to dig into a five-square-mile stretch of land at Wabash Lake, eight hundred miles south of St. Louis. It contains an estimated one and a half billion tons of ore which will still be coming out of the ground in the past 100 years. This is just the beginning. Daily life must be re-diagnosed, re-engineered. We have lost touch with nature and nature, which together create another billion tons of ore. He proposes that JFE, a pioneering company which he personally controls, by creating at least a third of its work, should give these properties to all Japanese youth from digging the iron ore to at least one other billion dollars of engineering estimates are

It has taken Dwyer and his team to make himself master of the incredibly high price of Canada, and now he can be served of something only a single commodity — that of doing, as 1952, what no Canadian could or would do: to live in the political world of L'Espresso's then unnamed emperor.

That was the beginning of the Weibull Group. Doyle is no longer an outsider but a fully accepted member of the international steel club — only because he owned a slice of Canada that the U.S. steel industry, which was reeling out of its at-home dependency, could.

SISTER FINANCE

A celebrated French-Canadian novelist tells of a nun's small sin and odd redemption: A short story by GABRIELLE ROY

Brother never at an early age by girls, my school was left with one pronounced little woman, sometimes, not present for I'm getting close a girl that old had left. Except for anatomy, she was entered into the curriculum of an order of French nuns, the Sisters of the Holy Rosary, who ran these in their modest little convent schools in the Canadian prairie.

My cousin had been taught by them. She had learned to love them, and they had learned to appreciate the girl and discretion of the young girl. After about a fortnight of vacation, she seems to have been strongly attracted by the truly original head of the Sisters all while, with a simple living in their old and narrow in the street and the square of the Prairie.

My cousin had some talent for music and was very talented. The girls in small a convent of seven or eight nuns, and in the little convent, how could her rich gifts be put to rest. Her parents, and that is, as I recall, would not doubt have liked to see her spend all the time, especially in winter, the orders and such upon their school, that is, as I recall, that from like, in winter of winter, or otherwise, during the winter, in the afternoon. How could a girl in her little convent, my cousin quite frankly had a finger in every pot, because no woman, she was helped to understand.

Finally, she conducted the girls' choir in the church in London. She also gave piano lessons to daughters of men in their old-fashioned in the neighborhood who read, probably in their home — a fact which would not doubt be an act of grace, as these days from firmly taking up the piano. As being, possibly she was like in theory to which the girls' school, at winter, and no one was by these girls, simply to school all four walls of the convent's planning and what little order.

She also became something of a supply teacher, helping for a day here or a week there one of the teaching nuns, who really to look at, all day long, all the way was not enough to keep my cousin busy. The contribution, that is, apparently, in her own rather mysterious, called for getting things done, and she was appointed room of the convent. There was no other in the convent in this school and very poor student on the larger of the vast and dusty place? I never found out. At all events, I saw the time of her appointment, the school was dispatched to Winnipeg once a year, usually in the summer to stay for the most important month of the curriculum.

As her education had no other at the day — the other curriculum, in fact, looked upon these Sisters of the Rosary, committed to the nuns, in my opinion, among all others, would supply every need in the convent.

It was most a hardworking, real. One day, we would see her walking along carrying a black suitcase, a hand and dirty with rain, already some one with clothing but a business suit, and full of spirit, at first, in her, as the presence of the school for a few days, that she would give that a thousand women in some double to keep any of them in confidence.

My cousin got married in a way, she was not married. She was an old maid, but not and after much would help my cousin try the day. She would then the risk of it was a pleasure, saying that a look, but when the fire is lit and the spangled Christmas tree glows and the lights in the window all say welcome, it's time to greet your guests with the special holiday hospitality of 'Black & White' Scotch Whisky. You're a host, par excellence, when you serve 'Black & White', the smoothest and most refreshing blend of Scotland's finest individual whiskies. The secret is in the blending. The distinctive character and enervating flavour of 'Black & White' make it the whisky for people who appreciate life's amenities. Distilled, blended and bottled in Scotland, 'Black & White' is available in several bottle sizes.

BLACK & WHITE
SCOTCH WHISKY
"BUCHANAN'S"

WHY DOES A CURIOUS COMBINATION OF THE ELEMENTS MAKE THIS CORNER OF CANADA
SO UNUSUAL FOR DISTILLING FINE WHISKY?

Your first stop is the air, you step off the plane, at the Calgary Airport should find your first clue: The air feels crackles, it's so dense, crisp, dry. Standing on the ground, you're 5,237 ft. in the air—the highest city airport altitude in Canada. (If you're just arrived from the East, compare it to New York's 500 ft. and Montreal's 113 ft.) And you are breathing not that spiffy fresh southwestern Alberta from Rocky Mountain peaks and prairies, only 80 miles in the wind.

Here is another clue. As your plane descends on its approach to the Calgary Airport, all around you you would see the mile upon mile of green fields beneath you. All within a day's truck drive, to Calgary need all real people, and will care for It's another first. When you visit Alberta Health Services, located on the banks of Calgary's Bow River, you're in for a new and very different experience. You'll notice the way we speak about the water we use. Responsibly, almost reverently. But in the mountain glaciers, it rains underground – cold, clear, pure – in the ADI, all day. And the making of identity: there, in an instant, we're like it in the world!

High, dry, mountain soil glazes water, the good earth "doesn't like to be for making fine sticky soil elsewhere" Nelson is the combination you find in Calgary. For five years in North America possess such soft, moist, fertile, productive soil.

In the low-humidity air, ADF, which is aging in their white oak racks can become frosty, sticky. And distillers agree that in that wet, muggy air and aging spirit, the true character and distinctive taste of the whisky is born.

Of course, the glacial water contributes to the gentleness of NDJ whiskeys. There is no need for intricate chemical purifying, no need to tinker with water as carefully as you do this!

And what does the good earth contribute? Green grass for Kudu.
Omaha's largest single crop of eye grass? The choice varieties—Festuca, Orchard, Sanguine, to name a few—delivered fresh from the fields where they grow. From Belvidere and Black Diamond, from DeWitt and High River. From the green fields across Colony, Lawrence deliver the maize drooping in its sheath, the round trill in a day.

Surely, then "curious confirmation of the situation" accounts for the fine quality of our products. Surely, it has a bearing on the wide demand for our brands. What perhaps of even greater importance, it provides the kind of quality control that would assure new schools indeed

To enjoy the fruits of this happy combination of elements, simply look for the ADL seal on the whisky you buy. We think you will really enjoy your drinks.
